Who Benefits from a Planroom?

A planroom provides increased competition in the marketplace, which helps everyone involved achieve better pricing.

Owners: Promote your project from its earliest stage; the planroom gives maximum notice and exposure to projects. This helps architects obtain competitive bids for you!

Architects and Engineers: While a planroom serves as a location to attract interested bidders, it also helps an architect or engineer by posting important information such as bid dates, mandatory pre-bid conferences, addendums and other bidding requirements for those reviewing the plans and specs. ECA works carefully with architects and engineers to make sure we have the most up-to-date and accurate information on their projects. The planroom gives maximum notice and exposure to projects. This helps architects obtain competitive bids for owners.

General Contractors: General Contractors use planrooms as a central location to house projects. We offer a full-service private electronic planroom which enables GC's to create invitations to bid. This often eliminates excess traffic and disruption and is more convenient to subcontractors and suppliers. Coming soon: upload projects yourself from the comfort of your own office!

Subcontractors: Subcontractors rely on a planroom to receive notice of bid opportunities and to learn of important information, such as bid dates, pre-bid conferences and keeping track of addendums. This information is critical for them to be able to provide competitive pricing. Additionally, the central location of multiple projects provides a convenient and inexpensive way to review a large amount of bid opportunities at one time.

Suppliers: Suppliers rely on a planroom as a central location to learn of multiple opportunities to conveniently and inexpensively promote their product. You can also add your name to the Bidder's lists for heightened exposure, and you can learn important information, such as bid dates, pre-bid conferences and addendums.

Service Companies: Aside from taking advantage of the services that suppliers use, the planroom gives service vendors such as attorneys and sureties direct access to bidding documents and specifications for necessary reviews and to answer client questions on specific projects.

Member Testimonial

"55 years and counting is how long we have been a member of ECA. It is one membership we will not give up! Our calls for information are returned immediately. If it requires some research, it is done quickly and reported back to us the next day. We enjoy programs and events where we see and speak with people in our industry. It is great to meet people you might only talk to on the phone. The planroom is second to none. We use the private plan page option with all the projects we are asking for pricing on. It is user friendly."
